

Indigenous Broadcasting Program (IBP) – funding 2009-10

Indigenous radio services help to promote language maintenance and cultural development and provide training to Indigenous communities. They also provide entertainment and help disseminate health, education and other information to Indigenous communities.

In 2009-10 the Indigenous Broadcasting Program (IBP) is providing $14,588,000 to support Indigenous community broadcasting projects in metropolitan, regional and remote Australian locations.

This includes support for:

- Indigenous community radio stations in metropolitan Melbourne, Perth, Sydney, Brisbane and Darwin
- Indigenous community radio stations in regional centres
- Remote Indigenous [radio] Broadcasting Services (RIBS)
- Remote Indigenous Media Organisations (RIMOs) which provide technical support and training for RIBS on a regional basis
- Indigenous organisations producing radio content and distributing it to Indigenous broadcasters
- Relevant training providers
- Imparja Television Service and Indigenous Community Television.
- Indigenous media peak bodies

In 2009-10 there was an increase from 2008-09 in both the number of applications and the total amount of funding requested. The Department assessed 72 applications seeking over $23 million in funding. A total of 59 projects were approved for funding.

All applications were assessed in accordance with the IBP 2009-10 guidelines. Projects approved for funding will help to disseminate health, education and other information and provide entertainment to communities. The projects will also help to promote language maintenance and cultural development and provide employment and training opportunities, including in remote communities.

For the first time this year triennial funding was offered under the Indigenous Arts and Culture Programs for organisations that were able to demonstrate a history of excellent performance against the program objectives, or could demonstrate potential for outstanding achievement and development.

The IBP is part of the Australian Government whole-of-government Indigenous funding round coordinated by the Department of Families, Housing, Community Services and Indigenous Affairs.
