

National Cultural Policy Submission

1468681

Public and anonymous

Short submission (text box 500 words or less)

The dedication of a whole priority to Aboriginal arts is considered excessive, however if its to be pursued, the focus should be about encouraging genuine cultural and historical arts material so we can all learn about the rich culture of our indigenous peoples. There is an interest in learning more about the deep and meaningful stories of aboriginal people, which could lead to genuine engagement and collaboration. The constant focus on social politics [REDACTED] is wasting opportunity and good will to build authentic bonds between all peoples.