

I'm a general designer with over ten years experience in life useful items design and making. I'm a high-end thinker and writer in both Chinese and English. I like to see proper and good culture development and would like to leave valuable works for future generations.

I think it's very important for a nation to put unchangeable content/value in their culture. Kindness deserves fundamental position in a nation's culture building.

First of all, all churches have a unified teaching of God's kindness. Though we are not one religion country, God is the utmost authority on this planet is the truth, no one can deny. We can put Kindness in our culture without promoting any religion.

Secondly, another angle about kindness is that the existence of our universe always have beings and things happening to give human varieties to enjoy and experience is the kindness of universe. Kindness is just existing in the universe. We must reflect our surviving environment in the culture for our children to refer to as a guidance.

Thirdly, kindness is an active attitude towards each other. It's much better than "fair go", which sounds "have to", not actively willing to.

Fourthly, kindness means very broad inclusion since it's embeded in universe existence. It can work across different religions, different cultural backgrounds, different languages and different private situations.

In general, kindness worth to be taught, mentioned, promoted and passed on as the fundamental culture content. There is a picture of Kindness below, which is very vibrant. That speaks for Kindness itself.
