I like the five-pillars concept and the inclusions in each pillar, but I'd also love to see disability included in the language and scope of each and every pillar, as it applies to both artists and audiences, creative practice and engagement. I'd also love to see funding restored to struggling community endeavours in the arts (such as community bands and theatres) as well as public institutions such as galleries and museums, which effectively act as libraries for the consumption and enjoyment of art and culture, and are a great equaliser in Australian society.
