There needs to be more emphasis on arts for all. The visual arts and performing arts are still elitist in Australia. Whilst I understand sport plays a major part in Australian culture, there is plenty of opportunity to promote 'the arts' to all. This starts with accessibility. The government needs to fund so that admission prices are capped. Cultural policy should also focus on cohesion and not favour one group over another. Having said that we need to promote Australian indigenous art as much the French do!
